MASTER IN PROJECT MANAGEMENT

The Master in Project Management (MPM) program is designed for the modern professional, who seeks to compete and add value to the dynamic global scenario of project management.

The spread of globalization, as well as the emergence of social, cultural and economic interdependence among nations, have made project management a vital part of the way the complex development of our global paradigm functions and is managed.

The Global School of Project Management was created for the purpose of understanding and adding value to this paradigm, through the formation of leaders with the skills, professional culture, and credentials needed to ensure success in the projects undertaken.

The GSPM professional has a competitive advantage that distinguishes him or her, as a director of projects, in every sector of the economy and any area of development.

GSPM Factor:

1-World-class reputation and accreditation. We are the first university in Latin America to have a program accredited by the GAC (Global Accreditation Center), in both attendance and on-line (virtual) modalities, and in two languages: English and Spanish. We were also the first university in the region to obtain recognition as REP (Registered Education Provider), since 2001.

Both accreditations are granted by the PMI (Project Management Institute), the world's leader in the dissemination of the discipline of project management and the certification of professionals in this field. GSPM complements its didactic curriculum with preparation to obtain several accreditations from PMI and GPM

2-Solidity and applied experience. International experts, who manage projects all over the world, form an important part of our teaching team. Ours is a top-level program that responds to today's complex paradigm of project direction and management.

- Over 15 years forming project management leaders.
- 2,000 graduates from more than 40 countries.
- More than 140 generations of students affirm our commitment to sustainable development in the region and the world.
- We are a School that performs and produces. Our Project Management office has developed more than 100 international cooperation projects in 15 different countries.

3-Education and innovation for the XXI Century. Our students' experience and the needs of our societies are the starting points for the design of our programs. We strengthen direct relationships between knowledge and the development of skills in the human talent. Our on-line (virtual) platform has evolved in excellence and continuous improvement for more than 15 years.

On-line or virtual education facilitates and potentiates the formation of the distance learning student, breaking the barriers of time and space, since it enables a communication environment for the development of teaching and learning processes through information and communications technologies (ICT's).

Offered in a on-line (virtual) modality, our programs allow the student to maximize the efficient use of his/her time and investment as a professional.

4-A superior graduate degree. The GSPM Master in Project Management Degree provides much more than a certification, it is a real competitive advantage in the professional career of an expert in projects. The School is accredited and offers degrees with recognition from two government superior education agencies with the highest standards in Latin America:

- The "Secretaría de Educación Pública de México" (SEP, for its acronym in Spanish, is the Secretariat of Public Education of Mexico), through its Recognition of the Official Validity of Federal and State Superior Studies (RVOE, for its acronym in Spanish), that regulates and certifies our graduate program in the United Mexican States.
- The Costa Rican Ministry of Education, through the "Consejo Nacional de Enseñanza Superior Universitaria Privada (CONESUP, for its acronym in Spanish, is the National Council of Private Superior University Education), that regulates and certifies our graduate degrees in the Republic of Costa Rica.
- International quality: Our most important letters of presentation are the scope and quality of our programs, with recognition from great international corporations.
- Coexistence and interaction: Our students are immersed in a constant exchange of knowledge with real project managers from all over the world.
- A body of complementary certification: our students have the possibility of participation in diverse programs of study, in different languages, endorsed by the Project Management Institute (PMI).

5-An intelligent and planned investment. GSPM has world-class programs at accessible prices*. The School understands that increasing the number of professionals in project management is the most certain and concrete way to promote the world's sustainable development.

We offer Investment plans, and a variety of scholarship funds, that articulate this vision of extension and professional development to reduce the gaps in training and social status.

GSPM grants, for participants in the Master's programs, membership (student mode) for one year to the Project Management Institute (PMI). This membership allows access to a wide variety of resources, such as standards, literature, blogs, webinars, communities of practice, and many more benefits.

* To learn more about scholarship funds and investment plans, consult with our Admissions Department (see "Contact" at the end of the document).

6-A global vision with infinite local possibilities. The development of the knowledge society, the management of an integrated world economy, the protection of biodiversity, and the progress of the inhabitants of a remote population are achieved through the execution of thousands of projects every day.

Forming competitive leaders, who manage these projects with a multicultural, all-inclusive, multidisciplinary and committed vision, is GSPM's contribution to the community of peoples and nations of our planet.
